Mountain View High School is proud to present Loni Halstead as December's Student of the Month.

Loni is currently taking Civics and Econ, AP Literature, AP Physics 1, Mexican Folk Dance, and AVID: - a clearly challenging course load.

Loni does Mexican folk dance both inside and outside of school, and she is also the vice president of the Mountain View High School Folklorico Club, showing a true commitment to the art of dance. Loni is also part of the TEEN Design Club where she is the treasurer. This club actively tries to increase interest in coding and engineering among the student body. Additionally, Loni is currently an intern at the Petrov Lab at Stanford University, where she is studying bioinformatics, which is a field of study that combines biology, computer science, information engineering, mathematics and statistics to analyze and interpret biological data. On top of all this, Loni is the president of the Latino Student Union, showing outstanding dedication and time allocation.

Loni is an outstanding Mountain View High School student and an invaluable member of our community. Congratulations, Loni Halstead, Mountain View High School's December Student of the Month!
